WORDS TO INSPIRE

The most powerful buffer in times of stress and distress is our social connectedness; so let's all remember to stay physically distant but emotionally close...Reglate, Relate, Reason.

Support for parents and carers

GO EASY ON YOURSELVES!

First things first – ease your own anxiety. Think about how to support yourself so that you are in a physical and emotional position to support others. So, for your own sanity, see the tips and resources below:

FOR YOUR SANITY!!

- Open a window and take 10 deep breaths.
- Write down 10 things you're grateful for.
- Limit how much news you're taking in.
Watching in the morning may be better than just before you go to bed.
- Prepare for your house being messier!
More people in the house = more mess!

Quick Stress Calmers

- Breathe in and out as you trace around your hand with your finger, up breathe in, down breathe out
- Count slowly to 10 and then backwards from 10-0
- Breathe in and out and as you let out your long breath, roar like a dinosaur or sing a long note
- Suck some iced water from a frozen water bottle or through a straw
- Chew some minty gum
- Tense shoulders up to your ears, tense and release , tense and release
- 10 Star Jumps
- 5 Wall pushes - legs into a deep lunge, hands flat on the wall and PUSH !
- Press your hands together really hard
- 3 chair push-ups
- Place a pencil in between your teeth and do a wide SMILE
- Eat something crunchy (carrots, celery crisps) or chewy (caramel bar) as you chew, focus on the smells, textures and tastes.

WHAT'S RIGHT FOR YOU

When we are faced with change, uncertainty or worry – focusing on what remains the same, and what is certain, for example using structure, can help.

Parent's and carer's care of children and young people

Top Tips...

- It's about getting a balance - having a structure and integrating some fun!
- Create a daily schedule, children will love being involved in this and it will give them some control and predictability. Make it visual if you can, and stick it on the wall. See the example below...
- Get washed & dressed as normal, eat at set times, distinguish weekdays and weekends, have busy/active times, and quiet/sitting activities.
- Have a range of activities for children to choose from. Creative time, physical activity, time in the garden, time for jobs, etc. See examples below for indoor and outdoor activities. Focus on ticking off tasks each day.
- Open windows and curtains to get natural light.

Time Well Spent

ACTIVITY IDEAS FOR CHILDREN AND YOUNG PEOPLE

- Draw a map of your local area, workout where friends live, make some postcards and post them through letterboxes.
- Give children jobs to do so that they feel part of the routine – for example; helping to prepare food, set the table, vacuum, tidy, and make their bed.
- A lot of siblings will not be used to being together all day, and that's an opportunity to build and strengthen your family relationships – but it will come with lots of ups and downs!
- Have a family film afternoon. Or give teenagers some private time to Skype or WhatsApp their friends.

Time Well Spent

ACTIVITY IDEAS FOR CHILDREN AND YOUNG PEOPLE

- Make a den.
- Doodle and draw.
- Put on music and dance.
- Watch 'GoNoodle'; or 'Joe Wicks Workouts' on YouTube.
- Look at old photos, make an album.
- Listen to audio books – Audible have free books.
- Plan and research future adventures.
- Play board games.
- Junk Modelling.

Staff Wellbeing Advice

ADVICE FOR SUSTAINING STAFF WELLBEING IN CRITICAL CARE DURING AND BEYOND COVID-19

The anticipated needs of staff will vary across each of the phases, consider the following support mechanisms:

Phases	Issues and likely impact	Needs and recommended approach
Pre-phase: No cases on unit	Anticipatory anxiety about what's on its way. Inability to think clearly, feeling overwhelmed, planning. Communication errors. Tension in working relationships. "Readiness" burnout.	Increase a sense of control - the team are in a safe pair of hands. Reassurance and planning. Communication updates are key (you may be thinking ahead, they are thinking now). Escalation plan. Support to managers who are making plans and holding the stresses.
Initial phase: Case 1	Starting to get going, lots of trying out, lost time, repetition and frustration. Further anticipatory anxiety	War room - planning central to allow centralised communication. Management are visible and available. Regular communication bulletins and open forums.
Core Phase: Full scale -Multiple cases	Biggest risk period. Fear infection and implications for families. Overwhelming workload. Full go mode- adrenalin and automatic pilot. Exhaustion. Moral distress as healthcare rationed. Distress linked to personal or family experience of COVID-19. Experience fear or stigma when out in public.	Have runners in PPE areas. Promote peer support. It's okay to say you are not okay - Senior staff to model this. Rotate workers from high-stress to lower-stress functions. Small pre-brief and debrief the day. Partner inexperienced workers with their more experiences colleagues. Psychological first aid - drop in sessions for staff with employee wellbeing if you have it. Ensure the basics: Breaks, Facilities (food trolley in staff room), Sleep, Days off. Manage visitors
End Phase: Immediate aftermath	Exhaustion and post trauma recovery / stress	Debriefing. Staff 1-1 and group sessions. Learning and preparation for the future. Organise thanks and reward. Look out for signs of PTSD in staff: <ul style="list-style-type: none">• on edge and hyper arousal, poor sleep• flashbacks or re-experiencing• avoidance of reminders.

SELF-CARE DURING COVID-19

Most importantly this is unprecedented: It is okay to not be okay

- Seek information updates at specific times during the day once or twice. The sudden and near-constant stream of news reports can cause anyone to feel worried. Get the facts. www.gov.uk
- Feeling stressed is an experience that you and many of your colleagues are likely going through. It is normal to be feeling this way in the current situation. Stress and the feelings associated with it are by no means a reflection that you cannot do your job or that you are weak.
- Managing your stress/psychosocial wellbeing during this time is as important as managing your physical health.
- Take care of your basic needs and ensure rest and respite during work or between shifts, eat sufficient and healthy food, engage in physical activity, and stay in contact with family and friends.
- This is an unprecedented scenario, don't try to learn new strategies, use the ones that you have used in the past to manage times of stress.
- This is likely to be a marathon - pace yourself
- Consider your psychological energy levels - you will need to "fill up" after "emptying the tank"
- Be aware of your "bandwidth"- it might take longer to think things through and make sense of things if you are feeling overwhelmed
- Beware dramatic language that might panic your colleagues.
- Avoid using unhelpful coping strategies such as tobacco, alcohol or other drugs.
- Some workers may unfortunately experience avoidance by their family or community due to stigma or fear. If possible, staying connected with your loved ones including through digital methods is one way to maintain contact. Turn to your colleagues or team leader for social support - your colleagues may be having similar experiences to you.

STOP, BREATHE, then THINK- slowing your breathing slows the stress cycle and re-engages your frontal lobes - then you can think.

Charlie Mackesy

There is a reason this information is at the end of the guide. You and your children will be adjusting to lots of changes right now. Remember that you are their parents, carers or family members, NOT their teachers. The best thing you can do is be with them, show them that everything will be OK. Do things with them, do the washing-up and sing a song, dance in the kitchen, let them help with the laundry. Also, give them space and time alone. Your teachers will help them when they are back in school. For now, be a family.
